River of Miracles

Excerpts from "WORDS FOR THE NEW YEAR—2008", January 1, 2008

I say this day be quick to repent before me for I say that there is much in preparation for thee. I say that I the Living God will not give my mercy and great abundance nor my goodness to those who will stiffen themselves in sin, or to those who will harden themselves in pride. But I say when my own people will be quick to repent before me there will be no cessation to what I pour forth. I say that I am the endless river, the river of life, the river of joy, the river of miracles. I say that I am the river that desires to flow out from the very throne of who I am. Therefore I say be glad that it is me the Living God who does give thee the living water, the miracle water of who I am. Be glad that it is me the Living God who does provide and provide, and provide abundantly unto thee. I say that I give thee the waters to drink of, I give thee the waters to wash in, I give thee the waters to swim in for I am the endless water. I say that you are so privileged to partake continually of the same. I say this day be uplifted and made glad that it is me the Living God who does give thee the great promises of hope. I the Living God do not promise my people any thing only to take the promises away. But I say that I promise my people great things that they would be the recipients of the abundance that I do provide. I say that I promise my people great things that they can come forth rejoicing in me. For I say it is me who is blessedness and truth, life and strength, power and glory. It is me who is the way of hope intended for my own. I say this day be glad that you are so privileged to be uplifted in the light, the life, the strength, the glory of who I am. Be glad that you are so privileged to be continually partaking of me for I am thy mainstay. Be glad that it is me that you can look unto in faith and you will receive that which I provide. It is me the Living God who does give thee the promise of hope, the promise of blessedness, the promise of life. I say hold steadfastly to the same and you will receive and receive, and receive. For I say indeed that I the Living God will reward those who will walk uprightly. I say that you will have joy upon your faces as you behold the power of my presence. I say that you will be made glad in your hearts for I the Living God am good to thee. I say this day be glad that you are so privileged that you are counted worthy to receive. Be glad that it is me the Living God who will reward those who walk uprightly in me. Be glad that it is me the Living God who will privilege thee to be co-laborers in the harvest at hand. Be glad that it is me the Living God who can bestow the endless mercies that I can provide.

It is me that you are meant to believe in, and it is of me that you will receive of for there is no end to me. I say give thanks and praise, thanks and praise that I am thy God. I say let the year ahead of thee be a time of rejoicing with the giving of praise for I say that is what I the Living God have intended for thee. I say that I do not intend thee to live nor to wander in desolated places but I have called thee and purposed thee to live in the abundance, the resplendence of my life. I say that I have called thee to partake of the endless river, the river of life, the river of glory, the river of miracles. I say that I have called thee to be my river people, ever receiving of the waters of life. I say that I have called thee to eat of the bread that is living and to be strengthened by the same. I say that I have called thee to be ever rejoicing in me that I am thy mainstay. I say that I have called thee to receive the blessedness that I the Living God do have in store.

Pour Forth RIVERS of Glory

Words of the Spirit excerpt—January 17, 2008

I speak unto thee and I say while the fools go on in their folly that I the Living God will move as I have promised. I say that I will pour forth and pour forth and pour forth in rivers of my glory. I say that men will be glad to be among the lowly, to be among the meek, to be among those who have not anything. For I say that the ones who have not the things of this world and are desirous of me I say that I will fill and I will fill and I will fill them to overflowing. I say rejoice that you have been spared from the disease of the age, that you have been kept from the plagues. Rejoice that it is me the Living God who will allow thee to partake of the outflowing, the outpouring that I shall bring. I say that it is the time, it is the hour, it is the generation when I shall show once again that I am the Almighty. I say that I will show that I will give the very best unto those who will be lowly before me. I say rejoice and be glad that you do not need to be with the fools in their folly but you can be in me. I say give thanks, give praise.

Let All Who Are Thirsty, Drink

Words of the Spirit, Issue 5 (Newspaper format), p. 4, 11-12-89

I would speak unto thee and I would say that when my well does well up, yeah and when my fountain does pour forth and when my rivers of living water do come out, can you keep back the thirsty? Can you say, Nay, you cannot receive. I say no, that is not in your hands but you must be continually that well. You must be continually that fountain. You must be continually that river and you must let whosoever will drink for I would say unto thee that I the Lord thy God am no respecter of persons. And I would say unto thee that if my people desire me I will give myself unto my people. And I say that when they say there is the water and we must have it, I say let them have it for I would say unto thee that you know not who shall come forth in the end. And you know not who shall be purified. And you know not who shall be sanctified. But I would say unto thee let all who are thirsty drink. Yeah, let all who are thirsty drink.

I AM as a River

Words of the Spirit, Issue 5 (Newspaper format), p. 7, 11-14-89

I say unto thee this day is not fullness of life found in me? Is not fullness of life found in me? And I would say unto thee have not I told thee that I am as a river? Yeah, that I flow out and that I flow around and that I flow under and that I flow over but I keep flowing. I say unto thee that fullness of life is found in me and as you dwell in me and as you abide in me and as you partake of me yeah, you find that fullness. For I would speak unto thee and I would say unto thee do not deviate from me for outside of me there is no life but in me is fullness of life. I would say unto thee that the world scoffs me and scoffs my fullness of life because they know not that the living waters are there. I say unto thee that they're parched and they are cracked and yet they are scoffing and yet they are mocking for they resist the source of life. But I would say unto thee that you have been brought to that source of life. Resist it not but partake of the waters. Yeah, partake of me, yeah partake of my fullness. For I would say unto thee that as you follow me I am well able to provide for thee. I am well able to open up doors for thee. I am well able to water thee. I am well able to give thee the desires of mine heart. I say unto thee my children that I am fullness of life.

My Spirit & Love are as a River

Words of the Spirit, Issue 6 (Newspaper format), p. 4, 11-25-89

Yeah and did not I speak it unto thee and did not I declare it unto thee many times, and did not I expound it unto thee that my Spirit and my Love are as a river, and that there is always a place that it may flow, and that it may come forth and that it is well capable to go around and to go under and to go above and to go through, and have not I proven that unto you? For I would say unto thee that I have seen thee through many things, and I shall continue to see thee through many things. For I would say unto thee that as you are in my Spirit and as you are in my flow I say unto thee that I the Lord thy God do make a way. And I the Lord thy God do come through and I the Lord thy God do prevail. For I would say unto you, what man is wiser than me, and what counsel of man can forbid me? I say from the beginning they have tried to stop me and they have tried to master me and they have tried to prevent me, but none has prevailed. I say unto thee none has prevailed. For I would say unto thee that through the generations and through the centuries, that my Spirit has flowed on.

Infinite Spirit Waters

Words of the Spirit, Issue 60 (Newspaper format), p. 3, Feb-Mar 1996

I speak unto thee and I would ask thee, do you know how infinite the waters are that are in my river? I say when I will open my waters, and let them flow in the river, I say do you know how infinite those waters are? For I say unto thee that I am the infinite, endless God, and I say that there is no end to the waters that I shall pour forth. And I say there is no end to the width of my river, for I say that it may encompass miles, upon miles upon miles. For I say that you have no idea how much water there is in me, I say you have no idea how wide my river may become, I say unto thee, continue to pray, continue to cry out unto me, for the waters hover, and I say when I will release those waters, I say there is no end to the water.

Spirit Waters of Life/Death

Words of the Spirit, Issue 60 (Newspaper format), p. 3, Feb-Mar 1996

I say men have boxed in my natural rivers, and I say they have made them as polluted trickles, but I say unto thee when I shall unleash in my Spirit, I say no man shall box it in, for I say it shall be endless, and infinite and I say that the waters shall come, and they shall come and they shall come. I say men will plunge into the waters, and be made whole, and I say that other men will plunge into the waters and drown. But I say unto thee that the waters will continue to come, for I say that they are the waters of my life. I say continue to pray I say continue to cry out and call unto me that the river be opened fully. For I say unto thee that I have desired, to pour forth the river, I say this is my time, I say this is my season, I say do not let up, but I say beseech day and night, that the waters would come forth.

Infused with Spirit Power

Words of the Spirit, Issue 60 (Newspaper format), p. 24, Feb-Mar 1996

I say do not be lazy but I say continue to press into me, continue to press in until the dams burst, I say until the dams burst and the waters flow out. For I say ye have not any idea of how big my river is or how infinite my waters are, but I say unto thee that they may flood, and they may flood and they may flood. I say I desire to pour out my waters, the waters of my Spirit. I say be not lazy but I say continue to press in until the dams shall burst, the dams that men have made to keep back my water. I say continue to pray until they are busted apart, until they are torn asunder, and my waters shall flow. I say thank me that I am the Living Water, for I say that I desire out of thy bellies the living waters to flow, I say I do not desire a drop nor a trickle, but I say I desire rivers of living water to flow out of thee. I say continue to push into me with all that ye are, that ye be imbued with my power, that my power would overwhelm, overtake, overmaster any enemy that would oppose it. I say unto thee that this is the generation that I am bringing forth my Spirit people, I say be in that company for indeed I have called thee. I say press in and receive, I say press in and receive, the fullness I have prepared.
